

A Level Media Studies

Course Overview

Media Studies is a creative, practical and theoretical course, in which you will explore a wide range of media texts, audiences and media institutions. The course aims to enhance your enjoyment and appreciation of the media and its role in your everyday life. It also aims to develop your critical understanding of the media through engagement with a wide range of broadcast, print and E-Media texts. You will also have the opportunity to create your own production pieces as part of your coursework. This course offers great opportunity for educational visits such as the Bradford Media Museum and Media City.

During the A Level Media Studies course, you will learn through: Class discussions, group work, practical sessions, lecture style sessions and educational trips.

What You Will Study

The Eduqas specification offers learners the opportunity to develop a thorough and in depth understanding of key issues, using a comprehensive theoretical framework and a variety of advanced theoretical approaches and theories to support critical exploration and reflection, analysis and debate.

Both component 1 and 2 assesses media language, representation, media industries, audiences and media contexts.

Component 1 - Media products, Industries and Audiences

- Section A: Analysing Media, Language and Representation This section assesses media language and representation in relation to two of the following media forms: advertising, marketing, music video or newspapers.
- Section B: Understanding Media Industries and Audiences This section assesses two of the following media forms: advertising, marketing, film, newspapers, radio, video games and media contexts.

Component 2 - Media Forms and Products in Depth

- Section A: Television in the Global Age
- Section B: Magazines: Mainstream and Alternative Media
- Section C: Media in the Online Age

Component 3 - Cross Media Production (Coursework)

- An individual cross-media production based on two forms (Magazine, Advertising, Television, Music Video, Radio) in response to a choice of briefs set by Eduqas, applying knowledge and understanding of the theoretical framework and digital convergence.
